

Boston Partner Discusses the Future of NLRB Hearings

News

3.27.23

In an interview with Law360, Joshua Nadreau shares his insight on the continuation of remote NLRB hearings and whether he expects a shift back to in-person operations. He explains that although he's taken part in more in-person hearings lately, remote proceedings haven't totally gone away. Josh, a proponent of remote hearings, expects in-person hearings to again become the norm, and to the extent that all involved parties call for a certain format, that should rule the day. "Any time you can get the parties to agree on something, you've already had a bit of a win," he said.

To read the article visit Law360 (subscription required).

Please reach out to our Media team for any news inquiries.

Related People

Joshua D. Nadreau
Regional Managing Partner and Vice Chair, Labor Relations Group
617.722.0044
Email

Service Focus

Labor Relations

Related Offices

Atlanta