

Chief Knowledge and Innovation Officer Discusses AI Revolutionizing the Practice of Law

News

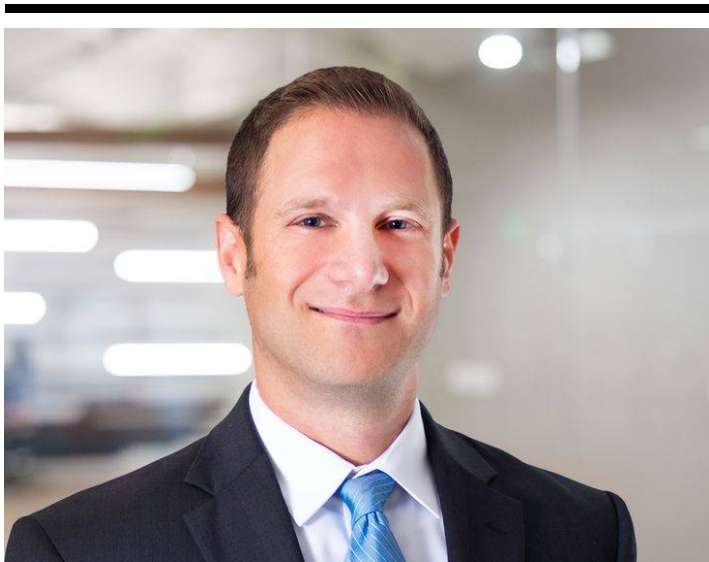

4.27.23

In this podcast interview with The Geek in Review, Evan Shenkman, Chief Knowledge and Innovation Officer, discusses Fisher Phillips' partnership with Casetext and their product, Co-Counsel. Evan explains how co-counsel will not take the place of the attorneys or paralegals but will be able to help them better assist their clients. "I don't think that CoCounsel or generative AI has changed things; I think it has just massively accelerated the speed at which our clients will expect us to use technology like this to do things better." He also notes the importance of training senior-level attorneys and summer associates on this technology. "We see that this is going to be the way people practice law in the future. So, we would like them to get access to it right off the bat."

To listen to the podcast, visit 3 Geeks and a Law Blog.

Please reach out to our Media team for any news inquiries.

Related People

Evan Shenkman

Chief Knowledge & Innovation Officer

908.516.1089

Email

Service Focus

Artificial Intelligence

Related Offices

New Jersey