In an interview with Law360, Alan Lesnewich discusses how his return to Fisher Phillips will help grow the reach of his practice. "I thought Fisher Phillips would be a great place to go because I'd have an opportunity to be involved in employment law, but also, based on my experience on the bench, I'd be able to be involved in alternative dispute resolution."

In the article he also discusses how his experience on the bench will only help him as a private lawyer because "one of the most important things a judge can do is listen to both sides and make decisions accurately and as quickly as possible."
