Accommodations issues in the workforce are increasingly complex, and questions regarding mental health accommodations are on the rise. Join Fisher Phillips, in conjunction with Association of Corporate Counsel, and in-house counsel at Duke University and Duke University Health System for a refresher on the accommodations process, a discussion of the ever-changing landscape of reasonable accommodations, and the unique issues surrounding the accommodation of mental health disabilities. They will also address difficult issues such as remote work as an accommodation and reassignment as an accommodation of last resort.
