

Are You Ready for a Union Organizing Drive at Your Workplace?

Union organizing is on the rise. According to the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) there were 1522 RC-Petition Elections held in 2022, up almost 65% over 2021 totals. Thus far, the data indicates that last year was no fluke, as 2023 election filings remain well ahead of the pace set just two years ago. This upward trend is being driven by a focus on industries not historically associated with unionization. Yet many employers, especially those in historically union-free sectors, are unprepared to lawfully and effectively respond to an organizing campaign. Don't be caught flat-footed after a union representation petition has already been filed.

This program, which is being offered on three different dates, will help employers implement decisive but lawful responses designed to foster and maintain a culture of positive workforce relations.

If you would to attend on the other available dates, see below:
