As 2023 comes to a close, the landscape of employment litigation in California remains complicated, creating new challenges to keep employers on their toes. This two-day virtual conference is intended for in-house counsel and HR directors. It will highlight four areas of litigation that have become increasingly common over the last year to help employers understand how to navigate this complex environment. We will also explore proven strategies to avoid litigation and how to leverage mediation, should litigation arise.

This conference features top attorneys from Fisher Phillips' California Litigation practice group and will provide lessons learned, successful approaches to effectively manage and defend litigation, and how to prepare for legal conflicts in the workplace.
