Charles Caulkins has been named to Florida Trend's 2023 Florida 500, which is a listing of the most influential people across the state. His profile highlights his 37-year career with Fisher Phillips where he advises employers on the development and implementation of preventive labor relations programs, including management education and training to avoid charges and lawsuits, protect trade secrets, and resolve disputes. Charles is also profiled for his role as chair of the Florida Chamber of Commerce, where he developed the organization's ongoing six-year plan, and his recent focus on improving education and meeting the goal of 100% of third graders reading on level.

Charles also offers advice to those who may consider practicing law saying, "get a few years of 'real world experience' before going to law school," and urges them to use their time to also think about what areas of law practice are compatible with their interests. "Also, don't be bashful in asking one or more lawyers and nonlawyers to mentor you," he added.
