Fisher Phillips, an international labor and employment law firm representing employers, has been named a finalist by Law.com in its Legalweek Leaders in Legal Tech Law Awards 2024 in the Innovations in Knowledge Management Category. This category “recognizes law firms that have implemented technology to innovate the attorney and law librarian research process or reinvent the role of knowledge management in the firm, including case and regulation research, judicial and court analytics, competitive intelligence and more.”

According to Legalweek, the Leaders in Tech Law” Awards “honor individuals and organizations for their achievements in innovation over the past year in a wide range of categories across law firms, legal departments and technology providers.” Fisher Phillips was shortlisted as a finalist because of the major role the firm played in developing, deploying, and then championing the responsible use of legal generative AI technology within the legal community in 2023.

The winners will be announced at an awards ceremony in New York on January 29, 2024 during Law.com’s annual “Legalweek” event.
