Suzanne Bogdan, partner and former Chair of Fisher Phillips' Education Practice Group, was named the 2024 Sarah Daignault Outstanding Support of Independent Schools Award recipient by the National Business Officer's Association (NBOA).

The award honors one person each year who consistently shows generous support of NBOA and independent school business officers. This could be through their thought leadership, participation in NBOA programs, and financial and practical support of the national independent school business officer community.

Suzanne's commitment to independent schools is demonstrated through her close collaboration with many associations, including NBOA, NAIS, SAIS, MISBO, MAIS, and the Florida Council of Independent Schools. "Suzanne has been a tireless advocate and partner of independent schools providing thought leadership and guidance in areas of the law that have the greatest impact on schools — the relationship with our people," said one nominator.

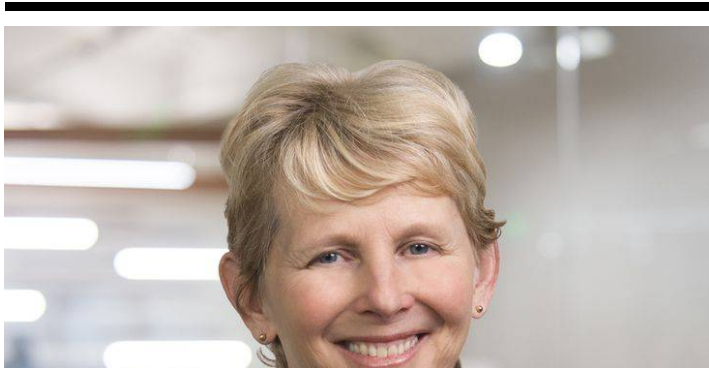

The award will be presented at the 2024 NBOA Annual Meeting in February in Atlanta.
