FOURTH THURSDAY ADVANCED WEBINAR SERIES: PLANNING A REDUCTION IN FORCE

Event

Mar 28, 2024

2:00 pm - 2:30 pm CDT

$35 per person

In spite of record-low unemployment, major companies' reduction in force affecting thousands of workers have been in the headlines in recent months. But big layoffs by major companies usually include severance benefits and releases obtained in return that can greatly reduce the risks of post-layoff lawsuits. Most companies finding they need to eliminate positions are doing so because of financial pressures that may inhibit their ability to pay severance and obtain releases. Whether a reduction affects one employee, a dozen employees or a hundred employees, companies must understand that these layoffs can generate as many or more claims than discharging employees for performance or misconduct. This session will explore the steps for planning a layoff to help companies keep the right employees and reduce the risk of lawsuits from those being let go.

The firm will submit this program for HRCI and SHRM credit.
