Fisher Phillips is pleased to announce that two attorneys in the firm's Mexico City office have been recognized in the 16th edition of The Best Lawyers in Mexico™. Germán de la Garza De Vecchi, Regional Managing Partner of the firm's three offices in Mexico, was honored among the top Labor and Employment Law practitioners, and Hector Cuevas, Partner, was honored for his Energy Law practice.

Germán de la Garza De Vecchi leads Fisher Phillips' Mexico offices and is known as one of the few "go to" lawyers in Mexico for large international companies facing difficult labor relations issues in the complex, ever-evolving Mexican union environment. With more than two decades of experience and a track record of results, his credibility among union leaders, government officials, and regulators enables him to achieve clients' goals in negotiations. Hector Cuevas counsels leaders in Mexico's growing renewable sector. He is actively involved in legal and regulatory matters across Mexico, acting as the principal legal advisor for the development, financing, operation, and acquisition of various infrastructure and energy projects. Since 2014, Hector has been involved in electric energy projects and investment project structuring with a social focus and has defended energy industry clients in court, in arbitrations, and before administrative agencies against claims involving whistleblowers, anticorruption and data protection.
