Memphis Partner, Greg Grisham, has been appointed by the Supreme Court of Tennessee to serve as a member of the Tennessee Board of Law Examiners. He will serve a three-year seven-month term, from May 20, 2025 through December 31, 2028.

The Tennessee Board of Law Examiners consists of five board members, each appointed by the Tennessee Supreme Court. Their duties include overseeing the State's licensing of attorneys, working with the Tennessee Supreme Court and the Executive Director on rulemaking and policy decisions affecting attorney licensing, and addressing issues relating to the admission of attorneys by exam and through comity applications (where the attorney is already licensed in another jurisdiction). For more information about the Tennessee Board of Law Examiners, please visit their website at www.tnble.org.

In addition to his recent appointment to the Tennessee Board of Law Examiners, Greg is serving a second three-year term as a Hearing Committee member for the Board of Professional Responsibility for Disciplinary District IX (Shelby County), where he assists the Board of Professional Responsibility in its mission to assist the Tennessee Supreme Court in protecting the public from harm from unethical lawyers by administering the disciplinary process.

Greg has also served in a number of other capacities in support of the administration of law throughout the state, and more information on his involvement can be found at this link on his bio.
