May is Mental Health Awareness Month and although this episode is publishing in June, there's never a wrong time to talk about mental health in the workplace. In this episode, Arthur and Chris welcome back Raeann Burgo, attorney in Fisher Phillips' Pittsburgh office, to discuss the latest in mental health and what it means for employers. Raeann provides an update on trends and issues she's seeing in this area and the group also discusses a hypothetical situation that an employer may face. We conclude by offering resources and best practices for our listeners to take back to their workplaces.
