Collecting user data through your website can be a valuable business driver, but in today's rapidly evolving privacy landscape, it can also be a ticking time bomb. Every time your website collects visitor data without compliant privacy controls, you risk regulatory fines and even costly litigation.

In this webinar, we'll explore:

- The shifting privacy terrain – from fresh legislative changes to new interpretations of existing laws.
- Litigation and enforcement trends – recent high-profile actions and the signals they send about what's coming next.
- Operational safeguards that work – how to go beyond written policies to implement and maintain practical, defensible privacy controls that protect both your users and your organization.

Whether you're in HR, marketing, compliance, legal, or IT, you'll walk away with actionable insights to help ensure your website data collection practices are both compliant and resilient.
