OVERVIEW

Suliman Khan represents businesses and employers in labor and employment disputes throughout California, handling wage and hour claims, wrongful termination suits, and employment class actions. He advises small and medium-sized companies on compliance with the FLSA, Title VII, and state labor laws while defending them against PAGA representative actions and single-plaintiff litigation.

Suliman manages cases involving discrimination, harassment, retaliation, and wage and hour violations in both state and federal courts. He litigates complex matters from initial investigation through trial and appeal and drafts employment contracts, advises on workplace policies, and guides employers through administrative agency proceedings, delivering practical legal solutions tailored to client needs.

Before joining Fisher Phillips, Suliman practiced at a regional firm where he concentrated on business litigation, labor and employment litigation, and transactional work for small businesses. His prior experience includes breach of contract disputes, defending wrongful termination and wage claims, and providing advice and counsel, giving clients a comprehensive perspective on employment law.
