OVERVIEW

Nicole Woolf brings nearly three decades of dedicated experience advising and representing employers and businesses in primarily non-contentious employment law matters. She advises on a wide array of potential claims, including unfair dismissal, discrimination, harassment, wrongful termination, and retaliation, while counseling clients on compliance with UK employment statutes and best practices. Nicole's pragmatic approach helps employers mitigate risk and resolve potential disputes efficiently, fostering productive workplace environments across various industries.

Nicole manages complex employee relations issues and provides strategic counsel on workforce policies, investigations, and regulatory compliance. She has also conducted investigations in relation to disciplinary and grievance matters for clients where appropriate. Her experience spans advising national chains, mid-sized companies, and corporate clients on issues such as unfair dismissal claims, redundancy consultations, and contractual disputes, ensuring tailored and business-focused solutions.

Nicole has served as an employment law consultant for a variety of London-based legal specialist firms, advising clients for over a decade. Prior to that, she was a senior associate at an international full-service law firm for nearly two decades, representing employers in a broad spectrum of employment law matters.
