OVERVIEW

Afroditi Griva counsels employers and businesses in London and across the UK on a wide spectrum of employment, labor, and benefits matters, drawing on a decade of experience in both leading international law firms and in-house legal teams. She advises clients in the financial services, technology, creative, and communications sectors on issues ranging from disciplinary actions, performance management, long-term sickness absence, and discrimination claims to enforcing post-termination restrictions and managing complex restructuring, site closures, and cross-border employee moves.

Afroditi handles contentious and advisory matters involving claims of discrimination, harassment, wrongful dismissal, and employment litigation before UK tribunals and courts. She regularly advises on multi-jurisdictional projects, working closely with HR teams and senior leadership to develop preventive strategies, conduct workplace investigations, and deliver tailored training sessions. Her in-house experience equips her to deliver advice that is not only legally sound, but also commercially attuned to the realities of clients' operations and risk profile.

Before joining Fisher Phillips, Afroditi was an associate at a full-service law firm in London, where she advised clients on advisory and contentious UK and international employment law issues. She also previously worked at an FTSE-listed global consultancy, where she assisted on employment law matters across Europe and advised on corporate transactions, restructuring, and employee relations.
