OVERVIEW

Katherine ("Katie") Primatic represents employers in labor and employment matters, drawing on her experience in federal and state courts and a background in complex civil litigation. Her work includes legal research, analysis, and drafting on a range of litigation matters, including employment-related disputes.

Before joining Fisher Phillips, Katie served as a judicial law clerk to a federal district court judge in New Jersey, where she assisted with civil and criminal trials, drafted judicial opinions, and prepared legal research and analysis for oral arguments. Her experience includes drafting opinions involving complex factual records, witness testimony, and expert evidence.

Katie previously clerked for a justice of the New Jersey Supreme Court, assisting with opinion drafting, oral argument preparation, and petitions for certification. She also practiced as a litigation associate at a national law firm, where she worked on employment, environmental, and business litigation matters.

Katie earned her J.D., magna cum laude, from Seton Hall University School of Law, where she was elected to the Order of the Coif and served as a Comments Editor of the Seton Hall Law Review. She earned her B.A. from the College of William & Mary, where she played four years of Division I volleyball.
