OVERVIEW

Matt Johnson represents businesses in labor and employment matters, drawing on his legal training and prior experience supporting litigation and client counseling.

Before becoming an associate at Fisher Phillips, Matt worked as a summer law clerk at the firm, where he conducted legal research, drafted client correspondence, reviewed and prepared commercial documents, and analyzed developing U.S. Supreme Court case law. He also gained exposure to dispute resolution through participation in settlement negotiations.

Matt's prior experience includes working at a law firm in Florida, where he assisted with litigation matters by drafting pleadings, discovery motions, settlement agreements, and legal memoranda. He also attended depositions and gained experience with other aspects of case preparation.

Matt earned his J.D. from the University of South Carolina Joseph F. Rice School of Law, where he served as an Articles Editor of the South Carolina Journal of International Law & Business. He earned his B.A., cum laude, in Journalism from Auburn University.
