OVERVIEW

Sarah Boylan represents and advises employers on labor and employment matters, drawing on experience in employment litigation, workplace compliance, and legal research. She helps employers navigate employment-related issues, including developing policies and practices that address legal and regulatory requirements.

Before joining Fisher Phillips, Sarah worked as a summer law clerk at a Florida employment law firm, where she researched federal employment discrimination laws, drafted litigation documents, and assisted with mediations. Sarah also helped develop workplace policies addressing leave and reemployment rights. Furthermore, Sarah prepared training materials for investigators and other workplace decisionmakers during her time as a summer law clerk.

Sarah's additional legal experience includes a federal judicial externship with the U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Florida and a legal internship with the Office of the State Attorney, Thirteenth Judicial Circuit. She also previously worked for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, where she supported federal investigations, assisted with trial preparation, coordinated with law enforcement agencies, and supported applicant processing.

Sarah earned her J.D., magna cum laude, from Stetson University College of Law, where she served as a Notes and Comments Editor of the Stetson Law Review. She earned her B.S. in Psychology and B.A. in Criminology, both cum laude, from the University of Florida.
