MARIAH EARLEY

Associate

Columbia

803.233.7497

Service Focus

- Counseling and Advice
- Litigation and Trials

OVERVIEW

Mariah Earley represents employers in labor and employment matters, drawing on her experience supporting employment litigation, legal research, and case strategy.

Before becoming an associate at Fisher Phillips, Mariah worked as a law clerk at the firm, where she assisted attorneys throughout the litigation process. Her work included conducting legal research, drafting motions and pleadings, supporting discovery, and preparing case summaries. She also monitored legal developments to support client advisories and litigation strategy.

Mariah's additional legal experience includes working at a South Carolina law firm, where she researched employment, workers' compensation, insurance, and business law matters and assisted with litigation preparation and client communications. She also served as a research assistant at the University of South Carolina School of Law, analyzing statutes, case law, and legal developments affecting employers.

Copyright © 2026 Fisher Phillips LLP. All Rights Reserved.

Before law school, Mariah worked as a paralegal, supporting attorneys on a substantial caseload involving various civil and criminal matters. Her responsibilities included drafting litigation documents, coordinating case management, and assisting with mediation and trial preparation.

Mariah earned her J.D. from the University of South Carolina Joseph F. Rice School of Law, where she graduated magna cum laude (in the top 10% of her class), was elected to the Order of the Coif, and served as a Symposium Editor of the South Carolina Law Review. She earned her B.S. in Biology from Coastal Carolina University.

Credentials

Education

- University of South Carolina School of Law, J.D., magna cum laude, 2026
- Coastal Carolina University, B.S., 2021

Admissions

- South Carolina

Copyright © 2026 Fisher Phillips LLP. All Rights Reserved.