UNDERSTANDING CALIFORNIA LAWS ON MEAL AND REST PERIODS: THE IMPACT OF THE BRINKER RESTAURANT CASE – FREE WEBINAR – MAY 16

Event
May 16, 2012

On April 12, 2012 the California Supreme Court clarified the meal- and rest-period laws, as well as standards for class certification for these claims, and for off-the-clock claims. The impact of the ruling in Brinker Restaurant Corp. v. Superior Court is far reaching. The decision emphasizes the importance of properly scheduling and documenting meal periods, carefully drafting policies informing employees of their entitlements to meal and rest periods, and developing accurate timekeeping policies which are supervised by management.

The labor and employment attorneys from Fisher Phillips will present a webinar that will explore what this ruling really means for employers and help to determine whether your current policies are fully compliant and where vulnerability remains. This presentation will offer the tools and information necessary to implement management strategies which can lead to full compliance with these developing California laws.

This hour long webinar is free, but registration is required. Once your registration is complete you will receive an email confirmation with instructions on how to join the webinar. Participation in this webinar has been approved for one hour of HRCI credit.
