

Security Threats and Employee Privacy – A Complicated Balancing Act

Event

11.11.14

Companies face increasingly sophisticated security threats every day. They must also manage a workforce that is mobile and plugged in 24/7. How do you manage the new security threats created by these developments while respecting the legal rights of your employees? The panel discussion will tell you how. The panelists representing data and cyber security, labor and employment law, and human resources will explain:

- Your technological vulnerabilities.
- New challenges created by personal devices and social media.
- Limits on employee screening and monitoring.
- Legal steps you must take to prevent identify theft.
