DOL Takes Aim at Misclassification

Are you sure you have properly classified your employees & contractors?

We continue to see misclassification lawsuits and the inconvenient truth about these lawsuits is that the potential liability is massive. This briefing will help to shine a light on many assumptions that are no longer valid, including whether various job classifications are truly exempt from federal overtime requirements and whether workers are truly independent contractors. It will also provide a road map for properly classifying those positions going forward to avoid such liability.
