4.12.16

8:30 AM - 12:00 PM

Fisher Phillips invites Human Resource Professionals, in-house counsel and others in the New York City area who have responsibility for employees in the Nordic region to join us on April 12, 2016 for a breakfast and seminar presented by IUNO, a leading law firm in Copenhagen, Denmark. The program, co-sponsored by Fisher Phillips, will focus on investing in or setting up businesses in the Nordic Region. The venue is the highly regarded Nordic restaurant Aquavit.

During the seminar, you will get valuable information on how to invest in and set up businesses in the Nordic Region, from both a corporate and HR legal perspective, and how to avoid the potential legal pitfalls that many corporations face when entering the region.

A panel of experts from the Nordic countries will guide you through the key legal considerations surrounding investing in and setting up businesses in the Nordic Region. The seminar will focus on:

- HR legal due diligence - red flags for investment decisions
- Choosing the right legal entity (branch, local legal entity, no permanent establishment)
- Choosing the right employment relation (employment, hiring in, self-employed and consultants)
- Posting of workers / expats
- Minimum wage and other key considerations

The panel of experts includes:

Pål Kvernaas (Haavind, Norway)

Åsa Erlandsson (Setterwalls, Sweden)

Jari-Pekka Alho (Krogerus, Finland)

Anders Etgen Reitz (IUNO, Denmark), who will moderate the seminar.
