Partner Scott Schneider will speak at the National Campus Safety Summit in Las Vegas on February 23, 2017. His topic will be, Law Enforcement Body Cameras: Practical, Policy, and Legal Considerations.

Topic Description:

The environment for police officers had become exceptionally difficult over the last several years and there has been a clamor on college campuses for administrations to reconsider the practices of campus law enforcement. One issue that has received considerable attention is whether campus law enforcement should use body camera. This presentation will explore the myriad practical, policy, and legal considerations departments must mull over when considering and ultimately implementing a body camera program.

Takeaways

1. Discuss the pros and cons of body cameras as well as practical considerations campus law enforcement agencies should consider pre-implementation.
2. Offer advice on policy language and implementation with respect to body cameras.
3. Identify the main legal issues associated with the use of law enforcement body cameras and consider steps that can be taken to mitigate risk.
