This presentation offers attendees an in-depth, practical examination of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (the "Act") and how it, and the Secretary of Labor's right to enforce the Act, may potentially affect his or her business. Attendees will be provided a thorough analysis of the Act, including its history and purpose, the type of citations, penalties that may be issued under the Act, and a step-by-step discussion of the legal process implicated when a citation is issued.

Attendees will be provided "real world" information regarding the various legal aspects of the Act, including references to actual scenarios under which citations under the Act have been issued. Education regarding the Secretary of Labor's right to issue citations will be a focus; attendees will learn the ramifications that may result from the payment of citations even after settlement negotiations with the Secretary of Labor have taken place.
