Please join Fisher Phillips attorneys Lisa Vickery and Josh Nadreau as they navigate the practical and legal landscape for transit employers considering automation/electrification of their vehicle fleets. This webinar will provide practical advice for avoiding labor disputes and address concerns surrounding the implementation of advanced technologies, highlight relevant statutes and the potential role of existing collective bargaining agreements, and cover required actions if layoffs become necessary.

It is important for transit agencies to consider these issues prior to implementing new technologies to avoid costly legal pitfalls and workforce strife. Attendees will leave with an outline and overview of the steps employers need to take now to better position their agencies.
