Workforce Management magazine, in its November 17 issue, named Fisher Phillips to its "Hot List" of the top labor and employment law firms in the United States. The publication noted the firm's large client base as well as its diverse areas of practice related to workplace laws.

Workforce Management is for and about the leaders who are using HR to create a measurable competitive advantage and since July, 2003, every issue has included The Hot List featuring a ranking of top HR providers, products and services that help keep businesses up to date, on track and focused on what matters most--its people.
