ATLANTA, GA (June 7, 2011) – Terri Stewart, an associate in the Atlanta office, recently was chosen to be a member of the LEAD Atlanta Class of 2012.

LEAD is an initiative of Leadership Atlanta, the oldest sustained community leadership program in the nation.

"We are excited about this excellent opportunity for Terri," said Roger Quillen, chairman and managing partner of Fisher Phillips. "She is taking her place among this distinguished group of young professionals to learn and to lead with them. This experience will make Terri an even greater asset to our firm and to the clients we serve."

Stewart represents management in all areas of labor and employment law in state and federal courts, as well as before state and federal agencies. Her practice focuses on the defense of employment-related lawsuits in trial and appellate courts, encompassing a variety of issues. She also frequently advises employers on reductions in force, drafts employment agreements, personnel policies, separation agreements and releases and conducts on-site training on topics such as employment law compliance and avoidance of harassment claims.

Stewart was listed in the 2011 edition of Georgia Super Lawyers - Rising Stars.
